

The Journey to Sustainability: Managing a Transition for Food and Agriculture Sectors

23rd November, 2022 | 12:00-3:20pm AEDT | Zoom webinar

Sustainability is an essential part of our present and our future, and truly exemplifies how we can 'think globally, act locally'.

ILSI SEAR Australasia and AIFST's online webinar on sustainability, 'The Journey to Sustainability: Managing a Transition for Food and Agriculture Sectors' follows the "think global, act local" concept, and brings together an impressive program of national and international speakers addressing the challenges of building sustainability into our agriculture and food sectors.

The first in this series on sustainability, this program takes a broad perspective, exploring how international organizations transition to sustainable food systems, creating ethical and sustainable foodscapes, supporting food production through biodiversity and agrigenomics and soil recarbonisation.

ILSI SEAR Australasia and AIFST invites you join us on 23rd November to update your knowledge of the field of sustainability in the agriculture and food sectors.

12:00 - Session Chair: Mr Dean Stockwell, President of ILSI SEAR Australasia

12:05-12:40	The challenges and opportunities of capturing more biodiversity to support food production Prof Robert Henry, The University of Queensland, Australia
12:40-12:15	Creating ethical and sustainable foodscapes in our productive land: From thoughtscales to healthscapes Prof Pablo Gregorini, Lincoln University, New Zealand
13:15-13:50	Developing and strengthening an international ecosystem of organizations that work together to realize the transition to a sustainable global food system Ms Marjolein Brasz, FoodValley Netherlands

13:50 - 14:05 Break

14:05 - Session Chair: Prof Fariba Dehghani, The University of Sydney, Australia

14:10-14:45	Agrigenomics Dr Val Gidding, Information Technology & Innovation Foundation, USA
14:45-15:20	De-risking Australian soil carbon projects: Recarbonising soils to decarbonize the atmosphere. Ms Kate Carmichael, AgriProve, Australia

Registration Fees: $70 non-members | $45 members | $25 non-member student | $15 student member

Register today for this event at <https://www.aifst.asn.au/event-5013151>

Australasia Country Committee

australian institute of food science & technology

Contact us at: assist@ilsi.org.au

